RE: Permit Application for the following source of air pollution:
Stationary Standby Generator – Diesel Engine
California Pacific Medical Center – Davies Hospital
45 Castro Street
San Francisco, California 94114

The Bay Area Air Quality Management District (the “District”) is a local agency that regulates stationary sources of air pollution such as factories, industrial sites, and gasoline stations.

Whenever we receive a permit application for a new or modified source(s) of toxic air contaminants located within 1,000 feet of a school site, State law requires that we notify the public. To comply with this requirement, we distribute or mail a Public Notice to the parents or guardians of students enrolled at schools located within ¼ mile, and all residents and businesses located within 1,000 feet, of the proposed source(s).

You are receiving this Public Notice because a permit application has been filed with the District for the above referenced source of air pollution. A description of the proposed project follows:

The California Pacific Medical Center – Davies Hospital is applying for an Authority to Construct and/or Permit to Operate for a stationary standby generator powered by a diesel engine. It will be used to generate electrical power for the hospital in the event of an emergency. Non-emergency testing and maintenance will be restricted to 50 hours of operation per year.

The District has determined that the increase in health risks resulting from toxic air contaminant emissions from the proposed source are within acceptable levels, and that the project will comply with all other applicable air pollution control requirements. Accordingly, the District plans to issue a Permit to Operate for the proposed project.
