Air District issues third consecutive Spare the Air Smog Alert Commuters urged to find alternatives to driving alone

SAN FRANCISCO – Today, the Bay Area Air Quality Management District is issuing its eighth Spare the Air Alert for smog in 2016.

Air quality is forecast to be unhealthy again tomorrow, Friday, July 15. A ridge of high pressure continues over northern California, leading to inland temperatures in the upper 90s, sunny skies and light winds. These conditions combined with motor vehicle exhaust from traffic will generate unhealthy ozone accumulation in the region. The high pressure system is expected to weaken over the weekend, bringing cooler temperatures next week.

“We must reduce the number of cars on Bay Area roads to knock down air pollution levels,” said Jack Broadbent, executive officer of the Air District. “For those who are able, Friday is a good day to work from home or carpool with colleagues.”

The single most effective way for residents to reduce smog is to drive less. Air District survey results find that Bay Area employees are more likely to adopt alternatives to driving alone when encouraged to do so by their employer. Bay Area employers with 50 or more full-time employees are now required to offer commuter benefits to their employees. For more information about the Commuter Benefits Program, visit 511.org and click on Bay Area Commuter Benefits Program.

Spare the Air Alerts are issued when ozone pollution is forecast to reach unhealthy levels. Ozone, or smog, can cause throat irritation, congestion, chest pain, trigger asthma, inflame the lining of the lungs and worsen bronchitis and emphysema. Long-term exposure to ozone can reduce lung function. Ozone pollution is particularly harmful for young children, seniors and those with respiratory and heart conditions. When a Spare the Air Alert is issued, outdoor exercise should be done only in the early morning hours when ozone concentrations are lower.

To improve air quality, residents are encouraged to carpool, bike, walk or take transit to work instead of driving alone, not just on Spare the Air days, but every day. Residents can visit www.stacommuteitips.org to find a list of commute programs and incentives available where they live and work.

To find out when a Spare the Air Alert is in effect, residents can register for email AirAlerts at www.sparetheair.org, call 1(800) HELP-AIR, download the Spare the Air App or connect with Spare the Air on Facebook or Twitter.

There is no free transit tomorrow and there is no wood burning ban in place.
