WOMEN'S EQUALITY DAY

At the Air District, we honor Women's Equality Day not only by reflecting on the past, but by examining how we can dismantle inequity in the present. Whether through air quality advocacy, leadership development or inclusive hiring, we recommit to advancing gender justice in every lane — because environmental justice is gender justice too.

Did You Know?

- Women in the U.S. still earn only 82 cents for every dollar earned by men. The gaps are even wider for Black women (69¢), Native women (57¢), and Latinas (54¢).
- Women make up nearly half of the workforce, yet hold only 10 percent of Fortune 500 CEO roles.
- In the U.S., only 1 in 4 Congress members are women — despite women being 51 percent of the population.
- Women of color are disproportionately impacted by environmental injustice, maternal health disparities and lack of access to clean air and healthcare.
