FROM: Bay Area Air Quality Management District

RE: Permit Application #692644 for the following sources of air pollution:

Stationary Emergency Diesel Fire Pump
Alameda County – General Services Agency
1401 Lakeside Drive, Oakland, CA 94612

The Bay Area Air Quality Management District (the "Air District") is a local agency that regulates stationary sources of air pollution such as factories, industrial sites, and gasoline stations.

Whenever we receive a permit application for a new or modified source of toxic air contaminants located within a community that is overburdened by air pollution, we notify the public about the proposed project. To comply with Air District requirements, we distribute or mail a Public Notice to all residents and businesses located within 1,000 feet of the proposed source.

You are receiving this Public Notice because a permit application has been filed for the above referenced source of air pollution. A description of the proposed project follows:

Alameda County – General Services Agency (GSA) has applied for authorization to construct (1) new stationary diesel fire pump engine. The generator set will provide power to the building fire system during emergency situations such as unexpected power outages.

PRELIMINARY EVALUATION

The Air District has evaluated the permit application for the proposed project and has made a preliminary determination that the project is expected to comply with all applicable Air District, state, and federal air quality-related regulations, including the health risks resulting from toxic air contaminant emissions. The preliminary recommendation is to issue a permit for this project. After considering all comments received, the Air District will make a final determination.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

The Air District's Community Health Protection Program is focused on reducing air pollution disparities in overburdened communities. For more information on Air District activities in your community, consult the Air District's website at:
